

5 Arrested in British Rail Robbery

By JOHN GALE
Associated Press Staff Writer
LONDON (AP) — Five hooded figures were hustled into a small country courthouse today and formally charged with participation in Britain's great train robbery or receiving part of the $7.2 million in loot.

Three men and two women were arrested.

One of the men charged with robbery, William Boal, denied the charges.

A detective told the court that Boal had told him during questioning: "I am silly to get involved with this. I should have known better."

The five suspects, two of them sisters, appeared before a magistrate in Linslade, a village 42 miles northwest of London.

The village is four miles from Cheddington, where a gang of bandits ambushed the night mail train from Glasgow eight days ago and escaped with 2.5 million pounds ($7.2 million).

The amount of the money recovered rose today, with a police announcement that it totaled 141,000 pounds ($394,800).

Two suitcases stuffed with money were found this morning in a wood south of London in Surrey, and police began checking whether it was loot from the mail hold-up.

The three men and two women were ordered held by police until Aug. 24 while the nationwide hunt continued for cash and confederates.

Reliable reports said nearly 100 detectives were combing the London area for members of the gang.

Officially, police said no further arrests were imminent. But there was reason to believe the net was tightening.

Authorities indicated they believed the gang was still in Britain. There was an unconfirmed report, however, that Scotland Yard had asked French police to watch for a 20-ton British yacht believed plying between the English South Coast and the north coast of France. Police fanned out along the South Coast, keeping a watch on little-used harbors.

The two men arrested in Bournemouth after a fight with police were identified as Roger John Cowdery and William Boal, both of London. They were charged with being concerned "with other."

Beef, Poultry; Top U.S. Meat Story

MORE MEAT ON THE TABLE—Per capita consumption of beef and poultry over the past decade has pushed total meat consumption to a new high, with further advances forecast. There has been some reduction in consumption of pork, veal, lamb, and mutton.

MORE BEEF ON THE HOOF—"Wave crests" in Newschart, above, indicate peaks of cycles in expansion of cattle numbers in the United States. Though more gradual, crest now developing reflects a much sharper growth in the number of beef animals.

KEEPING AHEAD OF THE JONESSES—Beef and poultry output has increased at a more rapid rate than United States population in recent years. For the year ahead, an estimated significant increase in consumption of these most-popular meats.

MORE MEAT FOR THE MONEY—In the overall, long-range picture, trend of wholesale prices for meat and processed (ready for market) poultry has been downward. This is one of many factors contributing to increased meat consumption in the U.S.

Nuclear Ban Treaty Picks Up Support

By ERNEST B. VACCARO
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of three key Senate committees agreed today that administration witnesses are building up a strong and effective case for ratification of the limited nuclear test ban treaty.

Chairman Richard B. Russell of the Armed Services Committee said government diplomatic, military and scientific spokesmen "make a very strong case." But he added that he is keeping an open mind until all the evidence is in.

The Georgia Democrat said he was "impressed that the witnesses are aware that there are military disadvantages" in adhering to the treaty.

Here's How the Site of the Montana Earthquake Looked 4 Years Afterward

EDITOR'S NOTE—Four years ago Saturday a powerful earthquake shook southwestern Montana. It threw a mountain top on a famed trout stream, damming it in an awesome avalanche, and killing 28 vacationers camped in its path. Nineteen of the 28 still are entombed under 80 million tons of rock and debris. The following tells what the site looks like to a tourist four years later.

By GEORGE MOSES
WEST YELLOWSTONE, Mont. (AP)—State Highway 287 winds South from the fishing village of Emmit along the broad, pleasant Madison River Valley.

After a while, road and river swing east toward a narrow opening in pine-covered mountains. A motorist unfamiliar with the area wonders when he'll see signs of the earthquake that threw a mountain top into the river just four years ago, damming it and killing 28 sleeping campers.

He doesn't have a long wait. Still miles away, he can see a brown gash in the wall of green pines on the right side of the canyon, almost at its mouth.

As he drives closer, a huge pile of rock shuts out his view. A detour swings him on a winding, climbing road to his left. A sign says "danger."

For the next few minutes the driver is busy negotiating the interval between oncoming cars and the unguarded right edge of the road, a disquieting height above the rocks.

He reaches a parking-sightseeing area and is about to ask where the slide area is.

Suddenly he realizes he is on it, and has been ever since he passed the detour sign half a mile to his rear.

To the south, just across the canyon, looms the half-mile wide scar left by the slide. It towers 1,000 feet above him.

Far below him, in what used to be the canyon floor, the Madison River flows over the slide area in a spillway cut in granite hasty by Army engineers within days after the catastrophe.

The tourist looks behind him on his own side of the canyon, to the north. He stares almost in disbelief, and senses for the first time the power of the quake-launched avalanche.

Stretching some 100 feet above and behind him is a pile of huge rocks and broken trees. They are the high-water mark of the avalanche as it thundered down the canyon, across the river, and rolled fully 400 feet up the other side.

Two rocks are bigger than houses. On one has been placed a plaque in memory of the 19 persons buried somewhere under

Hurst Trial Story Denied by Faubus

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — U.S. Grand Jury testimony quoted Thursday in the income tax evasion trial of state Sen. Q. Byrum Harris Gregory gave Hurst $2,500 in escrow after he told her he would take the money to Gov. Orval E. Faubus to prevent her husband's extradition to Texas.

Mrs. Gregory, 48, sentenced last May to 2 1/2 years in prison for receiving the earnings of a prostitute, testified on cross examination that there never were any extradition proceedings because Texas dropped the charge against her husband.

She said she had given Hurst $2,500 in checks. The checks never cleared a bank. Mrs. Gregory said she redeemed them for cash and that Hurst had paid back part of the money by paying bills she owed.

At Little Rock, Faubus said he had not received the money and would not have anything to do with such a deal, with Mrs. Gregory or anyone else. He said he had never talked to Hurst about Mrs. Gregory's case.

Mrs. Gregory's husband, the late Worth Gregory, was sentenced to the penitentiary in 1959 in Garland Circuit Court for possession of narcotics and burglary tools.

Mrs. Gregory testified Thursday that she had paid attorneys Hurst and Sam Anderson $2,500 to represent her husband in that case and had given Hurst an additional $2,500 to be used in fighting her husband's extradition to Texas on a charge of robbing a drug store.

Robert H. Purl, an attorney for Gregory, said he had not seen the testimony.

School Bible Reading O.K. in Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Arkansas Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett told the state's public schools today to continue their daily Bible reading and devotional exercises.

Bennett said in an opinion that the recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling barring state-ordered Bible reading and prayer did not strike down Arkansas' Bible-reading law.

The attorney general's opinion went to Glenn W. Black, superintendent of schools at Siloam Springs, but Bennett said he was speaking generally to all school administrators.

The Arkansas law, an initiated act passed by a vote of 69,694 to 53,460 in 1930, requires daily reading of a portion of the English Bible without comment.

It also says "prayer may be offered or the Lord's Prayer repeated." Bennett said this part of the law is permissive legislation and certainly would not fall under the Supreme Court decision.

Bennett said the Bible reading section also is permissive because the children are not required to take part.

The law requires that "any pupil shall be excused from the room on written request of a parent or guardian."

"Should Initiative Act No. 1 be subsequently struck down by the Supreme Court of the United States, or any inferior court, then I trust that the all-knowing Maker shall have mercy on this nation, whose school children thereafter may no longer acknowledge Him in our public schools," Bennett wrote.

"Continue your devotional exercises in the public schools of Arkansas," he concluded his brief.

The Arkansas law provides a fine of up to $25 for the first violation of the Bible-reading law, and dismissal of the teacher as the penalty for a second offense, Bennett said.

Bennett said the Supreme Court decision covered only cases in Pennsylvania and Maryland and struck down the Bible-reading laws of only those two states.

He said the Arkansas law also does not prescribe a particular prayer and does make prayer mandatory, therefore would not fall under the court's earlier prayer decision in which a New York School Board was told that its ordered prayer was unconstitutional.

"The school year 1963-64 in Arkansas should be conducted along the same lines and procedures heretofore pursued," Bennett wrote. "I cannot predict what lies in the future with reference to our state laws providing for permissive acknowledgment of the Deity, prayer to the Almighty, and recitation of the Lord's Prayer."

"The continued practice of reading the Bible in public schools in Arkansas is a necessary and essential supplement to every school child's education," Bennett wrote.

Arkansas Robbery Suspect Is Taken

STEELE, Mo. (AP) — One of four men wanted for an $800 armed robbery in Arkansas was arrested in the bus station here Thursday.

Police said Danny Ray Gordon, 19, told them he took a taxi from Blytheville, Ark., to Steele.

Three others involved in the armed robbery of a pawn shop near the Blytheville Air Force Base are still at large.

Armstrong Child Is Buried Friday

Funeral services for Lucinda Gay Armstrong, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Armstrong, Jr., who died in a Little Rock hospital Wednesday, were held at 10 a.m. today at Rose Hill cemetery. The Rev. Gladwin Connell officiated, with Oakcrest Mortuary in charge of arrangements.

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—"Our only arms were Bibles," said Julio Fernandez, one of 10 fugitives from Cuba who escaped kidnapping by Fidel Castro's men on the British island of Aguilera Cay.

"We carried no guns. They came firing from two gunboats," said Fernandez, 27, a Havana construction worker.

"About 15 heavily armed militiamen disembarked and came at us cursing and using foul language," he said. "They said they would shoot us on the spot if we didn't surrender."

Among 19 who gave up and were taken back to Cuba, Fernandez said, were four women, including his wife. Their two small children went with her.

U.S. fighter jets and a Coast Guard seaplane circled the tiny, uninhabited island helplessly and watched the strafing and kidnapping, according to Lt. J. E. Mills, 30, of Denver. He was making a routine Coast Guard check of the island Tuesday afternoon, under the provisions of a contract with the British government.

Last Appeal Lost, Jimenez Must Leave

WASHINGTON (AP) — Justice Arthur J. Goldberg of the Supreme Court today refused to block extradition of former Venezuelan dictator Marcos Perez Jimenez.

"I find applicant's (Perez Jimenez) real claim to be entirely lacking in merit," Goldberg stated.

The justice acted on a stay request while a charter airplane stood by at Miami Airport ready to whisk the former dictator back to his homeland to face charges that he embezzled $13 million while in office.

Goldberg acted after hearing almost three hours of argument Thursday on the stay request.

March Chief Admits Link to Red Group

NEW YORK (AP) — Bayard Rustin, deputy director of the planned Aug. 28 civil rights march on Washington, said today he once had been a member of the Young Communist League but never was a Communist.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., had said Tuesday that Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy had tried to whitewash "the question of Communist influence or involvement" in Negro rights demonstrations.

Thurmond, in his statement, said there was evidence that Rustin had been a member of the Young Communist League. He also said the Rustin file included a 1953 conviction for sex perversion and a subsequent arrest for vagrancy and lewdness.

He did not say Rustin was a Communist, but Rustin in his statement said "Sen. Thurmond charges me with communism."

"I am not now and never have been a member of the Communist party," Rustin said. He said he was a member of the league more than 20 years ago when he was a student at the City College of New York.

Regarding the attack on his morality, Rustin said "I am disinclined to put myself in the position to defend my own moral character."

Thurmond said Rustin served 28 months in prison during World War II "for failure to abide by the Selective Service Law."

Rustin said this constituted a charge "that I was a draft dodger during World War II. This is demonstrably false."

Rustin reported that, as a Quaker, he refused to participate in the war as a conscientious objector.

A. Philip Randolph, director of the march, and president of the Negro-American Labor Council, said he has "complete confidence in Bayard Rustin's character, integrity and extraordinary ability."

THE WIFE CAN'T WIN

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: What can you do about a man who wants everything his own way? I work two nights a week and Saturday. The balance of the evenings my husband does as he pleases but if I suggest going somewhere, he's made other plans and we wind up in an argument.

When I say, "Let's be reasonable and talk things out," he leaves home for as long as three days or more, especially weekends. He shows no interest or love for the children and refers to them as "your" children. It's never "our" children.

This has been going on for six or seven years—a squirrel cage of a life, if you ask me. But looking back I can see that it was ever thus, even when we first married. He'd act like a young turkey, stray from home every chance he got. The trouble is his mother spoiled him, gave into his whims, picked up after him and played the doormat, just as she did for his father. It looks like in our family the wife can't win. Need it always be so? —Disgusted Wife.

Dear Disgusted Wife: If your husband behaved in such a childish, selfish way when you were first married, I can't help but wonder what attracted you to him originally.

You whose marriages have gone on the rocks could render a tremendous service to teens if you would only dig a little deeper beneath the surface of your complaints, analyze yourselves as you are now compared to what you thought you were when you decided to marry, and come up with your own explanation of what went wrong. I believe that nine times out of ten the crux of the problem would turn out to be immaturity on the part of husband or wife, or both, at the time of the marriage.

How can two young people possibly know whether they want to spend the rest of their lives together when they don't really know themselves, let alone the other person?

Your husband sounds like a spoiled brat who has never grown up. Evidently his mother was to blame and you and your children are paying the price of his juvenile behavior.

There are two courses of action open to you; one, to continue being his doormat, just as his mother was; the other, to have a real showdown—making it very clear that you have certain rights, that you expect consideration from him as a husband and his full cooperation with the children as a father.

Like any other badly behaved, spoiled child, he needs to know that there are definite limits to what people around him will put up with. He has been "getting away with murder" for a long time; so you will have to assert yourself firmly, convincingly, and calmly. Tell him you've reached the end of your rope in putting up with his nonsense. Of course if he resorts to his walking-out-of-the-house technique, you might seriously consider packing your and the children's bags and moving to a friend's or relative's. At this point you have very little to lose and a lot to gain by such a drastic measure. It could have the same effect on him as a slap on the face of a child who is in the throes of a temper tantrum. Give him a copy of my leaflet, "Successful Marriage." A stamped self-addressed envelope will bring it to you.

Dear Helen: My wife eloped with another man in "my" car, taking most of our money. Figuratively and literally, I went to pieces, wanted to die and almost did. While in a daze, I crossed the street against the light and got hit by a truck. Good hospital care is pulling me through but with wife and savings gone, I feel there's little left to live for. Do you agree? —Abandoned Husband

Dear Abandoned: Not But, religion permitting, a divorce would certainly be justified. The court will handle the matter of recovery.

Mrs. John Robert Graves

The First Baptist Church in Hope was the setting for the 7 o'clock Thursday evening wedding ceremony of Miss Sue Ann Smith and John Robert Graves.

Mr. Graves and his bride will spend their honeymoon in Colorado and will later make their home in Fayetteville where Mr. Graves will enter the University of Arkansas School of Law.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Royce Lane Smith and a graduate of Ouachita Baptist College.
The bridegroom, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Graves, is a graduate of Tulane University where he was a member of Kappa Sigma Fraternity.

The Reverend James F. Brewer, uncle of the bride and pastor of the First Baptist Church in Helena, and Dr. George L. Balentine, church pastor, officiated at the ceremony. Music was presented by Luther Hollamon, organist.

The double-ring ceremony was performed before a background of branched candelabra and greenery. Southern smilax was entwined the length of the chancel and choir rails and was hung from the baptistry ledge on which was placed a branched candelabra also holding burning cathedral tapers. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of candlelight peau de soie and rose-point handrun Alencon lace with a chapel train. The moulded bodice was fashioned with a sabrina neckline and long pointed sleeves. Her veil of imported French illusion fell in misty layers from a soft circle of matching Alencon lace. The bride's only jewelry was a single strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom. She carried a cascade bouquet of white brides' roses.

Miss Dorothy Smith was her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaids

the slide.
The slide rolled across the river and spread out to form a tight dam of the Madison a mile up and down the canyon.

Quake Lake is the name given to the body of water impounded for five miles upstream by nature's dam-building. It is a clear, deep blue lake. But there's something strange about it.

It is ringed with dead pine trees that show the high-water mark reached before engineers punched through the spillway to relieve accumulating water pressure that might have blown the dam and spread chaos in the Madison Valley.

Tips of other dead trees stick out all over the lake, especially near the shore. Quake Lake's future for recreation—beyond sight-seeing—seems uncertain.

A pair of forest rangers man the most popular turnout area on the dam.

They give frequent lectures explaining just what happened.

Has the earthquake hurt tourist trade? Just the opposite. "Lots more people come this way now than did before the quake," a ranger says.

A short distance upstream from Quake Lake is Hebgen Dam and lake, this one built by man. The earthquake put a crack in Hebgen Dam, causing a rumor the dam had gone when in fact nature had added a second one.

The quake tilted Hebgen Lake, and several stretches of Highway 287, which skirts the lake, dropped into the water. This trapped 250 other vacationers in the canyon during the night of terror that followed the slide.

Signs here and there mark where some of the refugees gathered to comfort each other and await rescue — the wounded via helicopter, others by quickly bulldozed bypasses where the highway had disappeared. Parachutists of the U.S. Forest Service were the first to reach the stricken survivors.

Nuclear Ban

herence while maintaining they are more than offset by other factors in U.S. favor.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, said in a separate interview that he believes the treaty is picking up votes as the hearings proceed, on the basis of a very effective presentation.

Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., chairman of the Joint Atomic Energy Committee, said he thought the case for ratification is "terrifically strong. If anyone had any doubts about this treaty," he added, "I think he found a great deal of comfort and assurance in the testimony."

The three chairmen voiced their opinions before the Foreign Relations Committee went behind closed doors to question Director John A. McConne of the Central Intelligence Agency on the security aspects of the treaty banning nuclear tests in the atmosphere, underwater and in space.

The three committees, sitting jointly, heard Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor testify Thursday that the Joint Chiefs of Staff, of which he is chairman, agreed to support ratification without any "pressures" or "arm twisting" from Pentagon civilian superiors.

He said they based their support on assurances of:

1. "Comprehensive, aggressive, and continuing" weapons development and improvement in the underground testing environment permitted by the treaty.

2. Maintenance of modern nuclear laboratory facilities and programs to insure continued application of human scientific resources to these programs.

3. Maintenance of facilities and resources to institute atmospheric tests promptly if needed for national security or if the Soviet Union should abrogate the treaty.

4. Improvement of capability to detect any violations of the treaty and to maintain knowledge of Sino-Soviet "nuclear activity, capabilities, and achievements."

Q. "What did you say to (the governor) or what did he say to you?"

A. "I wanted to know if he had spent my $2,500 and he said 'No, ma'am.'"

Q. "He said he never got it?"

A. "He said he never got it and he didn't like for his office to be used like that."

Faubus said at Little Rock that Mrs. Gregory asked him to commute her husband's prison term, but that extradition was never mentioned. He said he refused the commutation and that Gregory stayed in prison until he was released on parole when he became eligible.

Mrs. Gregory testified that she had operated a house of prostitution for 15 of the 16 years she had lived in Hot Springs.

Judge John E. Miller instructed the jury to use Mrs. Gregory's statements before the grand jury only in determining what weight to give to her testimony in the tax trial.

At least 22 persons, mostly women, were overcome by gas fumes during the noon rush hour in Loveman's department store Thursday.

The store, one of Birmingham's major retail outlets, desegregated its eating facilities about two weeks ago. Fourteen of the gas victims were Negroes.

Witnesses said a white man dropped the gas bomb into a wastebasket at the foot of a first floor escalator.

Fumes quickly spread over the main floor and were carried throughout the five-story building by the air conditioning system.

Hurst Trial

the Justice Department's tax division in Washington, asked Mrs. Gregory if she had told the U.S. Grand Jury for the Western District of Arkansas on March 8, 1963, that Hurst represented to her that "he would have to take the money to the governor in order to keep your husband from being extradited back to Texas."

Mrs. Gregory said she didn't word it in that way. "I said in case there were (sic) extradition filed on my husband, then that $2,500 at the particular time would be used for fighting extradition to Texas," she said.

Puri then read from a letter dated Dec. 6, 1960, and addressed to Faubus. The letter, which Mrs. Gregory admitted presenting to the grand jury, said: "Would like to know whether or not you have found just what happened to the $2,500 paid by me to your office. Please advise me if and how I can recover this money."

Puri also read a series of questions and answers taken from a transcript of grand jury proceedings.

Q. "Who told you (the money) was going to the governor's office?"

A. "The senator himself."

Q. "And he said he was going to take the $2,500 over to the governor's office?"

A. "Uh-huh."

Q. "And to do what with it?"

A. "To pay to keep my husband from being extradited to Texas."

Mrs. Gregory was quoted as telling the grand jury that she conferred with the governor about her husband's case in 1960.

Q. "What did you say to (the governor) or what did he say to you?"

A. "I wanted to know if he had spent my $2,500 and he said 'No, ma'am.'"

Q. "He said he never got it?"

BANCROFT'S BANCO BY NELSON C. NYE

© 1963 Nelson C. Nye, Distributed by Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

THE STORY: Almost within sight of the ranch, the horses stampede and Bancroft Benson rides in pursuit.

XI

There was no possibility of over-taking them. All those extra miles we had squandered had left this dun in a pretty bad wilt. His jaw was flopping like a blacksmith's apron, but there was mustang enough in him that he would likely keep going until he fell in his tracks. One thing was for sure. If I would turn those broncs I had to find some way of being out on the bluffs ahead of them.

About a rope's length below where we had rimmed out the slope fell away all broken and tumbled in a rock strewn slide perhaps a quarter mile long, ugly and treacherous as anything I'd seen. It was no time for thinking. I had this one chance, the only one in sight of beating them into that criss-cross of gullied brakes.

I did not stop to pick any daisies. The dun in a stumbling run tried to swerve, but the slap of my hat in his face forced him over. We dropped 12 feet like falling out of a windmill. My stomach when we struck was against the roof of my mouth and my spine felt like it had gone through my skull. For 30 yards, maybe, we lobogged along on that beating dun's rump and then, muscles surging, he tried to yank his legs out of it and, with a sudden fierce rumble, the ground started moving.

Never have I experienced anything like those next few moments. It seemed like the whole side of the hill had come loose. Wind and dust and a grinding roar and the jolting under us are all I remember.

Somewhere between the top and the bottom with a lunge and a scramble the dun must have freed himself, got onto all fours, because the next thing I knew the brakes were around us in a nightmare blur and he was bounding like a rabbit, trying to get out of it before all that rubble behind tore into us.

A gulch opened up on the right and he shot into it, crashing through brush like the devil wouldn't have him. It clawed at my legs, ripped across my chest,

He was hurt, that was plain enough, hind legs not quite tracking. At another time, probably, I'd have had more regard for him. Right then the only picture I had was all that spent money at the bottom of some cliff.

I could see that at best it would be nip and tuck. Tom Rock and the mares were almost on to the bench, dropping into the brush just above it and still, by the looks, nearly twice that far ahead of me. I kept banging my rowels against ribs and hips. Now, desperate, I began swinging the reins ends. We gained a bit, held it, picked up a little more, than I felt him falter, start to come apart under me.

It was then that I began to wish that Tom Rock was not quite so well bred

Davenport Is Mainstay of the Giants

By MIKE RATHET

Associated Press Sports Writer

Wobbly-legged Jim Davenport, a versatile infielder whose underpinnings have been in the spotlight as much as any chorus girl's, is kicking up a fuss in San Francisco's bid to repeat as National League champion.

In and out of the line up because of his weak legs, Davenport played a key role in a 6-3 victory over Cincinnati Thursday night that kept the second-place Giants right on the heels of the front-running Los Angeles Dodgers.

Davenport, who stroked three hits for five straight hits in two games, legged out a key bunt single in the fifth inning to keep a rally going. Before it was over, Willie Mays had smashed a decisive two-run single and the Giants had four runs and the ball game.

The triumph left the Giants three games behind the Dodgers, who again got a superlative relief effort by Ron Perranoski, in a 7-5 decision at Milwaukee that snapped a three-game losing skid.

Houston dropped third-place St. Louis five games behind with a 4-2 victory built on John Bateman's three-run homer, Philadelphia took fifth place from Chicago by edging the Cubs 4-3 and Pittsburgh walloped the New York Mets 8-2.

The American League-leading New York Yankees thumped Boston 10-2, Minnesota crushed Baltimore 13-3, Detroit whipped Kansas City 11-1 and Washington ripped the Los Angeles Angels 5-4. Cleveland and the Chicago White Sox were idle.

Davenport raced out a triple in the first, beat out an infield hit in the third, then laid down his perfect bunt in the fifth to load the bases after Harvey Kuenn's single had accounted for the Giants' first run. Reds starter Joe Nuxhall, apparently upset, hit Willie McCovey with a pitch to force in a run before Mays wrapped it up.

Nuxhall had gone into the inning with a 1-0 lead provided by Yada Pinson's homer off Jack Sanford.

The Braves knocked out Sandy Koufax with a four-run first inning — three on Gene Oliver's homer — after the Dodgers had used Frank Howard's two-run homer to get off to a 3-0 lead in the top half of the inning. Then, in the fifth, with the score tied 5-5, the Dodgers broke through on a walk, Ron Fairly's double, a sacrifice fly by John Roseboro and Maury Wills' single. Perranoski allowed only one hit in 3-2-3 innings, boosting his record to 12-2.

Ike Qualifies Okay to Test

NEW YORK (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower said today he would favor the nuclear test ban treaty unless there is "some rather hard evidence" that America's security would be endangered.

Eisenhower, returning from a visit to the Normandy beaches of France, said he had been asked by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to give his views on the pact. He said he would do so in writing in "studied fashion."

Tennis Pick

Favors U.S.

Over Mexico

By JAMES BACON

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The luck

of the draw today favored the United States over Mexico in the first Davis Cup play ever held in this spawning ground of tennis champions.

Chuck McKinley, presently ranked as the world's top amateur, will take on Rafael Osuna,

Mexico's No. 1 star, in the opening singles match.

The second match will put Dennis Ralston against Antonio Palafox, Mexico's No. 2 man.

Had the draw, held Thursday, pitted Ralston against Osuna,

there was a good chance that

Mexico could start off with a victory in the American Zone semifinals.

But consensus of the experts

around the Los Angeles Tennis

Club is that no one can beat Mc-Kinley and Ralston rates a slight edge over Palafox. If form prevails, the United States could well wind up the first day's play with a 2-0 advantage.

But there is a quiet determination among the Mexican stars that could toss the form charts out the window.

Doubles play comes Saturday,

while the players change opponents in Sunday's singles match-

American League leaders walloped Boston 10-2.

PITCHING — Ron Perranoski,

Dodgers, allowed only one hit in 3-2-3 innings of relief work, protecting National League leaders'

7-5 triumph over Milwaukee.

Travelers Beaten 12-7 by Atlanta

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Atlanta Crackers swamped six Arkansas pitchers Thursday night in taking their third straight International League baseball victory from the Travelers. They won 12-7.

The Arkansas moundsmen gave up 15 hits and eight bases on balls.

In other league play Syracuse downed Indianapolis 6-3, Buffalo nicked Toronto 4-3 and Rochester beat Columbus 5-3 in a 13-inning game. Two games between Richmond and Jacksonville, at Jacksonville, were cancelled because of rain.

The three games between the Crackers and Travelers proved to be a "no-contest" series for second place in the southern division.

Waterwork Bonds

CHERRY VALLEY, Ark. (AP)

Cherry Valley voters approved, 97 to 13, Tuesday a $42,000 general obligation bond issue to help pay for a waterworks system. The money provided by the bond issue will be supplemented by a revenue bond issue. The 30-year issue approved Tuesday will be retired with a 10-mill tax.

es. No nominations have been made for the doubles. Osuna and Palafox are this year's Wimbledon doubles champions.

Confidence is the byword in both camps. Pancho Gonzales, pro and coach of the U.S. team, said:

"We can beat the Mexicans 5-0.

They can't beat us 5-0. And I think we will win."

Ft. Bliss Wins Over Sandia Base

FT. CHAFFEE, Ark. (AP)—Ft. Bliss, Tex. defeated Sandia Base, N.M. 2-1 Thursday night on a ninth-inning home run to take the losers bracket in the Fourth Army double elimination soft ball tournament.

The Texans meet the Pine Bluff Arsenal team at 7 p.m. for the championship.
